A special town meeting has been summoned for June 8, in Memorial Auditorium, to act on the withdrawal from the Essex County Mosquito Control Project.

The Selectmen unanimously voted to call the meeting - which requires a quorum of 350 voters - after receiving a letter from the Finance Committee recommending that procedure.

FinCom Chairman Winthrop Newcomb, in his letter, "strongly recommends" acting on the question of withdrawing from the project. The state assessed the town $10,500 for it this year. And under the law, if the town does not get out before Aug. 11 of 1959, there will not be another opportunity to withdraw until 1962.

At least one state official concerned with the over-all project, according to Assessor Archie MacLaren, has stated that the town would not benefit from the work unless it is surrounded by communities taking part in the project.

It also has been reported that many communities in the County are actually withdrawing, although there is no available count of these at this time.

What is a Co-Operative?

Cooperatives are groups of people who band together for some good purpose. Sometimes they operate stores — as we do — selling groceries and other household items. Often these people run co-operative banks, or mutual savings banks. Sometimes groups of consumers start an insurance company.

The important point of these cooperative endeavors is that the customers are also the owners. The Co-op is owned by its members, run by its members, run for its members. Any "profits" that the store makes belongs to each customer in proportion to his purchases. The more he buys, the more he saves.

But anyone may shop at the Co-op, just as anyone may become a member and exercise democratic control of the enterprise. Have you tried shopping — and saving — at the Andover Co-op?

Fire Swept Junction Area

Pellet-size pieces of hot carbon from a diesel engine have been blamed for starting last Sunday's spectacular fire that burned nearly 100 acres of brush and woodland in the Lowell Junction area.

Fire Chief Henry L. Hilton

said the diesel engine had also started a couple of fires along the tracks in Wilmington.

Hundreds of persons clogged the limited roads into the area, as firefighters from six communities fought the blaze. Extra police were rushed to the scene, shutting off the roads so that fire apparatus could move where needed.

Much of the burned-over area falls within the industrial zone of the three communities — Tewksbury, Wilmington and Andover — whose boundaries meet in the Junction.

Although homeowners were standing-by in case the flames came too close to the dwellings, there was no need for evacuation. Close to 150 men were involved in fighting the fire. Apparatus and men from No. Reading, No. Andover, Tewksbury, Wilmington and Reading were at the scene, along with the Andover crews. An engine from Lawrence filled in at the Central station. Call men and volunteers also flocked to the scene when the extent of the fire became known.

The only injury during the fire was suffered by Lt. J. Woodrow Crowley, who was taken to the Lawrence General Hospital for treatment of burns of the face and heat exhaustion. He was trapped in the flames when a gust of wind caused the fire to jump a roadway. Lt. Crowley was released and taken home.

During the firefighting, trains were allowed to pass slowly along the neighboring tracks. Some utility poles were ignited along the tracks but were rapidly extinguished.

whom she spends each afternoon, searched fruitlessly for a short while, then summoned police. She reported that the youngster started down Blanchard st. towards her own home, and then wandered up a side path. In a matter of moments, until she could get to the area, the child had disappeared from view.

Police, in charge of Chief David L. Nicoll, combed the immediate area and searched nearby buildings, but without any trace of the child.

Hounds Proved Wrong

Without any real proof as to which side of the road the young-ter might have eventually taken, Chief Nicoll called in the state police bloodhounds. Both dogs appeared to pick up her trail at the edge of the road and apparently followed it to a bog.

As plans were being made to pump out some of the water, so that men could walk through the area, off-duty policemen and firefighters, augmented by the auxiliary, appeared at the scene. Volunteers and neighbors also offered their services.

Many of the men began to search the woodlands, calling and using a portable loud speaker to attract the girl's attention if possible.

While all this was going on, the youngster was asleep less than 100 feet from Blanchard st., where Chief Nicoll was directing the search.

A neighbor, Richard Nabysocki, age 16, found the child just after 6 p.m. and carried her to her father. Judy, while apparently walking a considerable distance during the afternoon, seemed to be well rested after her heavy slumber.

Mrs. Holland later said Judy gave no special reason for going off in the woods alone.

Posse Formed Quickly

Once it was determined that extra help was needed, 20 off-duty patrolmen responded promptly, as did 10 firefighters called by Chief Henry L. Hilton. Capt. Raymond Mowat and 18 auxiliary police officers reported also.

Lt. Burton Batcheller established the communications network at the scene, with Douglas Crockett and Alex Ritchie using portable equipment.

Civil Defense Director Lee E. Noyes was at the scene and helped set up the search parties.

Save Funds

It was explained during the meeting that the town may get back some of the $10,500 it must pay this year for the project.

Although there has been no guarantee of a refund, it has been pointed out that if enough towns withdraw so that the funds are not used by the special commission of County residents, some portion of them may be given back in 1960.

In any event, the explanation continued, the town would not be assessed again next year if the voters act favorably on withdrawing. There has never been any estimate of the amount that might be required in future years, as the proposed project gets underway.

Local Estimate

It was recalled that the town obtained an estimate from a professional firm for spraying the community under a local mosquito control project. That estimate was $15 hourly - and it is believed that 32 miles of streets could be sprayed in an eight hour day.

The state-assessed project, as set up by statute, involves investigating the needs for this project, planning how it may be best accomplished, and executing the plan. State officials have not said whether it is contemplated that funds would be spent for consulting services, how many salaries might be paid, and to whom. One member of the Commission, John Sirois of Lawrence, said last week that there have been two or three meetings of the group and that officers have been chosen. But no other work has yet been done, he stated, because there have been no funds available.

According to Mr. Maclaren, the project originally was to be done under the county commissioners, who later disassociated themselves from it. It was then that the state appointed a commission, serving under the Reclamation Board in the Department of Agriculture.

Man Reported Armed Robbery

Evan Brunagin, 37, 475 River rd. reported to police Monday afternoon that he had been held up in his home by two dungaree-clad men, one wearing a stocking mask. One of the men displayed a gun, he stated.

State and Andover police were called to the home, a short distance from St. Francis Seminary.

Brunagin, according to police reports, said the men were in the house when he arrived about 2:55 p.m. Patrolman Raymond Pellerin quoted Brunagin as saying the men told him to get on the floor, stay there and not look at them.

Brunagin's son, Randy, arriving home from school about 3 o'clock, also was made to lie on the floor, receiving a bruised elbow, it was reported.

Police reported the men took a table radio, a bottle of whiskey, assorted meats and provisions from a freezer, a chrome electric coffee pot, two electric razors, cuff links, a watch, a pop-up toaster, women's jewelry, a flashlight, Japanese and Philippine currency, a carving set and two wallets, with a small amount of money in them.

The men were reported to have tried to take the Brunagin car, but could not start it. He furnished police with descriptions of the men, which are being checked this week.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

They Have A Right To Service

The generally confused issue involving unaccepted streets, many of which are among the oldest travelled ways in the town, may be settled, but apparently it will be a long job.

With the estimate Monday night that $20,000 would be required to properly lay out the streets, and fix some of them, it became apparent that this may be a long-range project. Legal opinion from Counsel Fredric S. O'Brien Jr. has it that the town must do this task, then get the town meeting to accept the streets.

We were under the impression that much of the ground work had been done by the former Board of Selectmen, through the special act of the Legislature proposed by that Board and adopted by the state body. It is even recalled that, on occasion, the Selectmen would inform the former Board of Public Works that one street or another had been accepted, and it was alright to work on the street in question.

Apparently we, along with many residents and some officials, did not understand the problem. For the recent ruling that the full job of laying out the streets must be done seems to contradict what we thought the former Board had done in a slightly different way.

It will be good to see work begin, on these streets where the town has, for years, maintained the roads, installed water mains, repaired culverts and done other work, because the residents on these streets have a right to this service now.

Needed: A Quorum

We heartily applaud the decision to hold a special town meeting early next month, for the withdrawal action from the mosquito control project.

The town has been assessed $10,500 for this county project, but it appears to be of dubious value to Andover. Even state officials are being quoted as agreeing that, unless all surrounding communities take part, the mosquito population could not be adequately controlled. And in Andover's case, this means that Middlesex County would be involved — in Wilmington, Tewksbury and No. Reading. There is no active project there — thus Andover probably would get no real and lasting help from any Essex County program that might, sometime in the future, be developed.

Moreover, the town could spray its own areas at a cost far less than that proposed by the state — another good reason to get out of the project while it is possible to do so.

While the town must pay this year's assessment, it has been reported that some of this money may be coming back next year, if enough other towns in the County withdraw also. And certainly the saving in future years, by eliminating this levy, is in itself good reason to withdraw, if not a single penny of this year's payment is refunded.

We hope there are enough voters, interested in saving some money for themselves, to make up a quorum at the meeting June 8 in Memorial Auditorium.

Congratulations

Public safety personnel — policemen, firefighters and the auxiliaries — deserve commendation for the way they turned out late Monday afternoon to search the Blanchard st. area for little Judy Holland. And not to be outdone, the communications network of Civil Defense was operating smoothly, providing searchers with ample communications throughout the period of the search.

Whenever a potential disaster faces a family, as it did the Hollands, it's good to know that so many townspeople — either off-duty or volunteers — will turn out in such numbers.

Andover Civil War Roundtable

The Andover Civil War Roundtable will hold its last meeting of the season on Monday evening, May 18, at 7:30 o'clock. This group has met all during the fall and winter at the library on the third Monday of each month to discuss various aspects of the Civil War, its background, conduct and aftermath. Any one interested in the subject is cordially invited to plan for the autumn reconvening of the members, several of whom have been regular attendants since the group was formed.

For full information, call Mr. Stanley Butcher, leader of the roundtable, or inquire at the main desk in the library.

Ballardvale Party

The pre-school members of the Littlest Listeners of Ballardvale will have their last day party at the branch library on Thursday morning, May 21, at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Emory Ackerman, in charge of the group, has asked mothers to share in the party while the little people take part in the program. Light refreshments will be served.

All three groups of Littlest Listeners are discontinued during the summer, and reopen early in the fall. Each group meets once in two weeks for a three quarter hour program of stories, musical games, the acting out of such books as "Little Engine That Could", etc. All activities are planned to help the child develop self confidence, social awareness and cooperation.

Parents who wish to enter a child who has passed a third birthday are invited to ask at the desk or speak to someone in the Children's room.

Awards For Children's Books

The Newbery and Caldecott medals were awarded recently to the writer of the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children and to the illustrator of the most distinguished American picture book to be published in the past year. Elizabeth Speare's story "Witch Of Blackbird Pond", Newbery winner, is set in Colonial Rhode Island, and tells how the settlers misunderstood the high spirits and free ways of a girl from Barbados. The picture book prize winner was "Chanticleer And The Fox", from the tales of Chaucer, illustrated by Barbara Cooney.

Both books and earlier prize winners may be borrowed from the Children's room of the Memorial Hall Library.

Great Books Meetings In Fall

The Great Books Discussion Group has closed this season's program, but will reopen in the early fall. Newcomers who wish to enter the group could make themselves known at the desk for a listing of the autumn readings. During its seventh year, which has come to a close this past month, the following books, among others, were read: Plato's "Symposium", Aristotle's "Ethics", selections from the "Annals" of Tacitus, Dante's "On World Government", Moliere's "Tartuffe" and Goethe's "Faust".

New members are reminded that each reading is independent of previous discussions, and stands on its own merit without necessary reference to earlier readings. Because of this, a newcomer should feel quite at home joining at any time.

10-YEAR REUNION OF PUNCHARD CLASS

Punchard High School class of 1949 will hold a 10-year reunion at the Andover Country club, May 16.

The final meeting of the committee was held at the home of Ruth Anderson Waters to complete arrangements for the affair.

There are still a few members of the class whose address is unknown. Any member of the class who did not receive an invitation, is asked to contact Ruth Anderson Waters or Beverly Arthur Manning.

ELECTED TO HEAD CAMERA CLUB

Margaret Brennan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brennan, of Elm st., has been elected secretary of the Camera Club at Mount College. Miss Brennan is a freshman at the college and will take up her official duties in the fall.

Solution Sought To Village Parking

Acting Manager Victor Mill Jr. and Police Chief David Nicoll have been instructed to come up with a parking plan for Shawsheen Village.

This solution to the never-ending problems in that area was proposed Monday night, after residents of Kensington st. appeared to ask that parking be restricted there, now that Windsor st. has been restricted. Dr. and Mrs. William G. Weiss and Dr. and Mrs. Edmond R. Melucci, residents of the street, explained that cars driven off Windsor st. are now parking on Kensington.

And they expressed the opinion that restrictions on their street will only result in the cars moving to William st., and a repetition of the complaints.

Dr. Melucci suggested that the problem be treated in the area, rather than street by street.

The residents said cars begin parking around 6:30 a.m. and some do not leave before 6 p.m.

Selectman Edward P. Hall suggested that perhaps the only solution will be restricting the streets so far away from the drivers' place of employment that they won't want to walk that far. It was explained that some of the cars apparently are driven by Haytheon personnel and others probably are driven by people working at the insurance companies. Residents also suggested that Kensington st. is a residential area and that, if parking is going to be restricted in the commercial zones, then it certainly should be regulated in the residential areas.

should not have any of the trucking from the Country Club gravel pit on their residential street.

Acting Town Manager Victor Mill Jr. suggested to the Selectmen that residents of both streets, with particularly the same reasons for their position, are right. And he felt that the only step to take is to lessen the nuisance as much as possible, because residents of both streets actually would prefer to have no trucks at all.

He suggested that Police Chief David Nicoll's suggestion, that trucks go in empty on Canterbury st. and out loaded on Beacon st., be adopted. This, he felt, would lessen the burden on the Beacon st. folks without imposing too much on those along Canterbury st.

But Board members preferred to discuss the possibility that a school bus might be the temporary answer to the problem.

Residents of Beacon st. said their children, at one time, could walk up to Chandler rd. and board the bus to school. They also had bus transportation back through this intersection in the afternoon. However, the service was discontinued last fall, they stated.

The Chandler rd. intersection with Beacon st. is felt to be the worst spot on the children's way to school.

Most of those present agreed that some method of getting the youngsters past this intersection would be a suitable answer to the problem at this time.

It was agreed by the Selectmen that they would try to have a meeting with the School Committee to discuss the bus possibility, before taking any other action.

It had been explained last week that the gravel pit operation will be stopped in June for the summer, to be started again in the fall and continuing through the winter. The work should be completed by next June, it was stated.

YWCA Program In High Gear

The YWCA Andover Program has passed the halfway mark in its eight-week spring session of classes.

The Alumni House in Andover is humming with activity every Thursday morning. "A new world has been opened to me," said one young woman following her flower arranging class; another after a trimnastics class commented, "You don't know what this has done for me!" New women in town especially are happy to have the opportunity to learn bridge, so that they may accept an invitation to a bridge party and thus meet people. Others are pleased to be able to learn more advanced bridge playing since bridge has become more and more popular as a recreational game.

In future program, the YWCA hopes to bring to Andover classes in homemaking skills, creative arts and courses designed to help women become better wives and mothers and to assume their responsibilities in the community.

Delays Pit Jobs

The state's cross-section method of paying for gravel, used in the construction of new highways, has been cited as the reason why some pits have been left ungraded and unloped.

A representative of Suburban Excavators, appearing before the Board of Selectmen Monday night, said his firm will gladly comply with all restrictions listed with the pit permits, whenever the state finishes its measurements to determine how much gravel has been taken out.

Selectman Edward P. Hall strongly urged that no further permits be issued to the firm, however, until there has been some indication that sloping and grading is being done on three or four pits along the new highway and in one at Route 125.

The issue Monday night was the firm's application to take gravel from a portion of land cutting out into a swamp near the Route 125 construction. The gravel will be urgently needed, the firm's representative stated, in the construction of an overpass.

Although Board members criticized the firm for not doing anything about slopes, they finally decided to contact state engineers to see whether measurements can be hurried, so that the excavation firm can begin its work on meeting the permit restrictions.

Method Described
The cross-section method is one in which the state first measures an area, staking out the bounds of the proposed excavation. After gravel has been removed according to the bounds and requirements of the state, more measurements are taken to find out how much gravel has been removed. This, it was explained, determines the payment for the material.

But if sloping and grading work is done in the pit before these measurements are taken, the figures will not accurately indicate the amount of gravel removed. Thus, the firm's representative explained, it is necessary to wait for the process to be completed by the state before any work can be done.

He urged the Board not to hold the firm up on further pits, promising that as soon as the state finishes its part of the job, sloping will commence.

He also explained that bonds

Wants Action
Selectman Hall, with Selectman William Stewart, urged prompt action on the part of the firm. They pointed out that the pits along Route 93 have been idle for a long time, while the one at Route 125 is now being completed. They questioned the intent of the excavators at that site, explaining that the owner had made some promises about work to be done, and said the promises have not been kept.Coming
